Presentation of the Project's Partner Company

NOV-BLM, better known in the industrial area of Nantes under the name BRISSONNEAU & LOTZ MARINE, was founded in 1841. Today, the company is the French subsidiary of the American multinational NOV, which is the world leader in drilling equipment. Even though NOV-BLM belongs to a group that is mainly interested in the oil and gas markets, it has retained its particularity by providing equipment for both the marine and offshore markets. As a long-standing partner of Chantiers de l'Atlantique, our mooring equipment has been equipping the cruise ships leaving Saint-Nazaire for several decades.

Involvement in the project

Attentive to technological changes and economic opportunities, we are today developing a partnership with Chantiers de l'Atlantique around this SOLID SAIL project. Our respective teams worked closely together to develop a system that allows the mast to be tilted and locked in a vertical position. We have also created a system to orient the balestron (in a way the mast that allows the sail to be unfurled) with its structure. We are proud to be actors in this project, which brings together several fine companies in the region and is in line with sustainable development.
